

The Young Generation

For their knowledge from ancient Chinese history, combined with our cutting edge 21st century, we created a new generation. The new generation of students has used Chinese language and literature using the contextualization and language across time (CAT).

Traditional Chinese culture is vast and rich. It can only be truly comprehended when students are immersed in our authentic cultural context and history. They do not merely learn about something in the textbook, they do it themselves. By having the chance to read and to share through the course, they can actually feel the rich and vibrant knowledge of Chinese and become true scholars.

Being that the skills they learn to apply that are transferable.

Our Journey Through Time: The Classics Left by The Confucians

We have a great deal to learn. We students should be equipped for their world, understanding themselves, others, and the world around us. We do so by reading and applying our learning through ancient China. Our students experienced the richness of ancient study and traditions, as well as the importance of respecting teachers and families.
